

DEFROST THE ROUTINE, SPARK THE JOY!

As the cold weather approaches, let's heat things up with creative ideas, happy faces, and the magic of the season.

Welcome to December's Newsletter, where we embrace the cold season and gear up to make the end of the year unforgettable. Let's shake off the old routines, spark creativity, and get ready to step into the new year with confidence and a whole lot of fun!

THIS MONTH'S FOCUS: SPONTANEITY

In December, we focused on spontaneity through fun improvisation games and interactive activities. These exercises help kids embrace their unique selves, building character and confidence!

WHY SPONTANEITY MATTERS

Spontaneity helps children:

- Improves problem-solving and creative thinking on the spot.
- Teaches how to analyze and respond thoughtfully.
- Helps students take risks and express themselves comfortably.
- Encourages creativity and developing a personal style.
- Builds confidence and effective communication skills.

SEE HOW FAR OUR KIDS HAVE COME

At the beginning of the term, many children were hesitant to speak up. Now, they radiate confidence, tackling challenges with enthusiasm and performing with ease. Parents have shared heartwarming stories of how their children have blossomed both in and outside the classroom.

This month, we've focused on improving verbal communication through role-playing and public speaking activities, helping students express ideas clearly and confidently. These skills boost their stage presence and real-life interactions.

WINTER STUDIO CLASSES FOR AGES 4 AND UP

Our studio classes are a hit with kids aged four and above. These sessions are a fantastic way for children to explore their personalities in a fun and supportive environment. Through guided activities, we help them express themselves, understand their emotions, and interact positively with others.

We're also encouraging students to explore our after school sessions for the Helen O'Grady Drama Program or join our studio classes, held every Saturday.

These sessions provide an excellent opportunity for kids to develop their confidence, creativity, and communication skills in a fun and welcoming environment.
